

Work on Building Progressing

The construction of the Schroeder Family School of Business Administration is progressing and today, structural steel began to be erected, according to Larry Horn, director of facilities management and planning.